Jo was the first to wake in the grey dawn of Christmas morning. No stockings hung at the fireplace, and for a moment she felt as much disappointed as she did long ago, when her little sock fell down because it was so crammed with presents. Then she remembered her mother's promise and, slipping her hand under her pillow, drew out a little crimson-covered book. She knew it very well, for it was that beautiful old story of the best life ever lived, and Jo felt that it was a true guide-book for any pilgrim going the long journey. She woke Meg with a "Merry Christmas", and bade her see what was under her pillow. A green-covered book appeared, with the same picture inside, and a few words written by their mother, which made their one present very precious in their eyes. Presently Beth and Amy woke, to rummage and find their little books also – one dove-coloured, the other blue; and all sat looking at and talking about them, while the East grew rosy with the coming day. In spite of her small vanities, Margaret had a sweet and pious nature, which unconsciously influenced her sisters, especially Jo, who loved her very tenderly, and obeyed her because her advice was gently given.

- (a) What day is mentioned in the passage?
- (b) How many different girls are there in the passage? What are their names?
- (c) Why was Jo so disappointed?
- (d) What book do you think her present was?
- (e) Whose life is referred to in this book?
- (f) All the girls had books as presents. How do you think they would recognise their own?
- (g) What two phrases in the story tell you the time of day?
- (h) Give in your own words the meaning of the following words in the passage:-
  - (i) RUMMAGE.    (ii) PIOUS.    (iii) PRECIOUS.    (iv) BADE    (v) PILGRIM
- (i) Give a reason why you think the girls had only one present each.
